Teaching for Learning and Learning for Teaching Christopher Kloppe,Steve Drew,2015-10-30 Teaching for Learning and Learning for Teaching focuses on the emerging global governmental and institutional agenda about higher education teaching quality and the role that peer review can play in supporting improvements in teaching and student outcomes This agenda is a pervasive element of the further development of higher education internationally through activities of governments global agencies institutions of higher education discrete disciplines and individual teachers Many universities have adopted student evaluations as a mechanism to appraise the quality of teaching These evaluations can be understood as providing a customer centric portrait of quality and when used as the sole arbiter of teaching performance they do not instil confidence in the system of evaluation by academic teaching staff Providing peer perspectives as counterpoint whether in a developmental or summative form goes some way to alleviating this imbalance and is the impetus for the resurgence of interest in peer review and observation of teaching This book seeks to recognise cases of peer review of teaching in Higher Education to affirm best practices and identify areas that require improvement in establishing local national and international benchmarks of teaching quality

American Higher Education in Crisis? Goldie Blumenstyk, 2015 Disinvestment by states has driven up tuition prices and student debt has reached an all time high Americans are questioning the worth of a college education even as studies show how important it is to economic and social mobility

The Marketisation of Higher Education and the Student as Consumer Mike Molesworth, Richard Scullion, Elizabeth Nixon, 2010-10-04 Until recently government policy in the UK has encouraged an expansion of Higher Education to increase participation and with an express aim of creating a more educated workforce This expansion has led to competition between Higher Education institutions with students increasingly positioned as consumers and institutions working to improve the extent to which they meet consumer demands Especially given the latest government funding cuts the most prevalent outlook in Higher Education today is one of business forcing institutions to reassess the way they are managed and promoted to ensure maximum efficiency sales and profits Students view the opportunity to gain a degree as a right and a service which they have paid for demanding a greater choice and a return on their investment Changes in higher education have been rapid and there has been little critical research into the implications This volume brings together internationally comparative academic perspectives critical accounts and empirical research to explore fully the issues and experiences of education as a commodity examining the international and financial context of marketisation the new purposes of universities the implications of university branding and promotion league tables and student surveys vs quality of education the higher education market and distance learning students as active consumers in the co creation of value changing student experiences demands and focus With contributions from many of the leading names involved in Higher Education including Ron Barnett Frank Furedi Lewis Elton Roger Brown and also Laurie Taylor in his journalistic guise as an academic at the University of Poppleton this book will be essential reading for many
