Ethiopia Health Extension Program Huihui Wang,Roman Tesfaye,Gandham N.V. Ramana,Chala Tesfaye Chekagn,2016-04-25 As a low income country Ethiopia has made impressive progress in improving health outcomes This report examines how Ethiopia s Health Extension Program HEP has contributed to the country s move toward Universal Health Coverage UHC and to shed light on how other countries may learn from Ethiopia s experiences of HEP when designing their own path to UHC HEP is one of the government s UHC strategies introduced in a context of limited resources and low coverage of essential health services The key aspects of the program include the capacity building and mobilization of more than 30 000 Health Extension Workers HEWs targeting more than 12 million model families and the mobilization of health development army to support the community based health system Using the HEP UHC conceptual model and data from Demographic and Health Surveys the study examines how the HEP has contributed to the country s move toward UHC During the period that the HEP has been implemented the country has experienced significant improvements in many dimensions in terms of socioeconomic psychological behavioral and biological dimensions of the beneficiaries and in terms of the coverage of health care services The study finds an accelerated rate of improvements among the rural less educated and the poor population which is leading to an overall reduction in equity gaps and improvements in the equity indicators including the concentration indices that suggest a more equitable distribution of resources and health outcomes The HEP in Ethiopia has demonstrated that an institutionalized community approach is effective in helping a country make progress toward UHC The elements of success in the HEP include the emphasis on community mobilization which identifies community priorities engages and empowers community members and supports their ability to solve local problems The other aspect of HEP is the emphasis on institutionalization of the activities which addresses the sustainability of community programs through high level of political commitment and effective coordination of national policies and leveraging of support from partners These findings may offer useful lessons for other low income countries facing similar challenges in developing and implementing a sustainable UHC strategy

Reducing Maternal and Neonatal Mortality in Indonesia Indonesian

Academy of Sciences, National Research Council, Policy and Global Affairs, Development, Security, and Cooperation, Joint Committee on Reducing Maternal and Neonatal Mortality in Indonesia, 2013-12-26 The Republic of Indonesia home to over 240 million people is the world's fourth most populous nation. Ethnically, culturally, and economically diverse, the Indonesian people are broadly dispersed across an archipelago of more than 13 000 islands. Rapid urbanization has given rise to one megacity, Jakarta, and to 10 other major metropolitan areas. And yet about half of Indonesians make their homes in rural areas of the country. Indonesia, a signatory to the United Nations Millennium Declaration, has committed to achieving the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). However, recent estimates suggest that Indonesia will not achieve by the target date of 2015 MDG 4 reduction by two thirds of the 1990 under-5 infant mortality rate (number of children under age 5 who die per 1 000 live births) and MDG 5 reduction by three quarters of the 1990 maternal mortality ratio (number of maternal deaths within 28 days of childbirth in a given year per 100 000 live births). Although much has been achieved, complex and indeed difficult challenges will have to be overcome before maternal and infant mortality are brought into the MDG prescribed range. Reducing Maternal and Neonatal Mortality in Indonesia is a joint study by the U.S. National Academy of Sciences and the Indonesian Academy of Sciences that evaluates the quality and consistency of the existing data on maternal and neonatal mortality, devises a strategy to achieve the Millennium Development Goals related to maternal mortality, fetal mortality, stillbirths, and neonatal mortality, and identifies the highest priority interventions and proposes steps toward development of an effective implementation plan. According to the UN Human Development Index (HDI) in 2012, Indonesia ranked 121st out of 185 countries in human development. However, over the last 20 years, the rate of improvement in Indonesia's HDI ranking has exceeded the world average. This progress may be attributable in part to the fact that Indonesia has put considerable effort into meeting the MDGs. This report is intended to be a contribution toward achieving the Millennium Development Goals.
