Measuring Biological Diversity Anne E. Magurran, 2013-04-18 This accessible and timely book provides a comprehensive overview of how to measure biodiversity. The book highlights new developments including innovative approaches to measuring taxonomic distinctness and estimating species richness and evaluates these alongside traditional methods such as species abundance distributions and diversity and evenness statistics. Helps the reader quantify and interpret patterns of ecological diversity focusing on the measurement and estimation of species richness and abundance. Explores the concept of ecological diversity bringing new perspectives to a field beset by contradictory views and advice. Discussion spans issues such as the meaning of community in the context of ecological diversity, scales of diversity and distribution of diversity among taxa. Highlights advances in measurement paying particular attention to new techniques such as species richness estimation, application of measures of diversity to conservation and environmental management and addressing sampling issues. Includes worked examples of key methods in helping people to understand the techniques and use available computer packages more effectively.

Soil Pollution Ibrahim Mirsal, 2013-04-17 This graduate level text and reference work is unique among the soil literature. It deals with the interdisciplinary fields of soil pollution and remediation. It starts off with a thorough and comprehensible introduction to the relevant fundamentals of mineralogy, chemistry and soil properties. Readers are thus well prepared to understand the biochemical aspects of soil remediation then presented. The book's holistic approach and narrative style are complemented by numerous and detailed illustrations. Soil pollution is an asset not only to graduate students and instructors but also to professionals from the environmental and agricultural sciences as it provides an integrated overview of previously separately treated material.

Ecological Diversity and Its Measurement Anne E. Magurran, 2013-04-17 Although diversity is one of the central themes of ecology there is considerable disagreement about how it should be measured. I first encountered this problem 10 years ago when I started my research career and spent a long time pouring over the literature in order to find the most useful techniques. The intervening decade has seen a further increase in the number of papers devoted to the topic of ecological diversity but has led to no consensus on how it should be measured. My aim in writing this book is therefore to provide a practical guide to ecological diversity and its measurement. In a quantitative subject such as the measurement of diversity it is inevitable that some mathematics are involved but at all times these are kept as simple as possible and the emphasis is constantly on ecological reality and practical application. I hope that others entering the fascinating field of ecological diversity will find it helpful. This book grew out of my work in The School of Biological and Environmental Studies at the New University of Ulster, Coleraine, Northern Ireland. I am indebted to all the ecologists there for providing a stimulating atmosphere. Foremost among these were Amyan Macfadyen and Palmer Newbould. A number of the figures and tables in the book are based on data collected in Northern Irish woodlands.

Generic Enrichment in Vergil and Horace S. J. Harrison,2011-03-31 S J Harrison sets out to sketch one answer to a key question in Latin literary history why did the period c 39 19 BC in Rome produce such a rich range of complex poetical texts above all in the work of the famous poets Vergil and Horace Harrison argues that one central aspect of this literary flourishing was the way in which different poetic genres or kinds pastoral epic tragedy etc interacted with each other and that that interaction itself was a prominent literary subject He explores this issue closely through detailed analysis of passages of the two poets works between these dates Harrison opens with an outline of generic theory ancient and modern as a basis for his argument suggesting how different poetic genres and their partial presence in each other can be detected in the Latin poetry of the first century BC
