Satoyama--satoumi Ecosystems and Human Well-being Anantha K. Duraiappah, 2012 Satoyama is a Japanese term describing mosaic landscapes of different ecosystems secondary forests farm lands irrigation ponds and grasslands along with human settlements managed to produce bundles of ecosystem services for human wellbeing The concept of satoyama longstanding traditions associated with land management practices that allow sustainable use of natural resources has been extended to cover marine and coastal ecosystems satoumi These landscapes and seascapes have been rapidly changing and the ecosystem services they provide are under threat from various social economic political and technological factors Satoyama Satoumi Ecosystems and Human Well Being presents the findings of the Japan Satoyama Satoumi Assessment JSSA a study of the interaction between humans and ecosystems in Japan It was written by the 200 plus authors stakeholders and reviewers from Japan and elsewhere who make up the JSSA team The study analyzes changes that have occurred in satoyama satoumi ecosystems over the last 50 years and identifies plausible future scenarios for the year 2050 taking into account various drivers such as governmental and economic policy climate change technology and sociobehavioral responses This provides a new approach to land use planning that addresses not only economic development but also cultural values and ecological integrity This book is a key reference text for development planners policymakers scientists postgraduate students and others interested in the environment and development

History Of Famous Orators Marcus Tullius Cicero, 2023-06 Cicero is considered to be Rome's greatest orator and prose writer His writing is some of the best classical Latin still in existence Cicero introduced Rome to Greek philosophy and created the Latin philosophical vocabulary This book contains two selections Cicero's Brutus or History of Famous Orators was written during the end of the civil war in Africa It discusses all the Roman and Greek speakers of any note at the time The conference is supposed to have been held with Atticus and their friend Brutus The Orator was written shortly after and is a plan or critical delineation of what he esteemed the most finished eloquence or style of Speaking As the following Rhetorical Pieces have never appeared before in the English language I thought a Translation of them would be no unacceptable offering to the Public The character of the Author Marcus Tullius Cicero is so universally celebrated that it would be needless and indeed impertinent to say any thing to recommend them The first of them was the fruit of his retirement during the remains of the Civil War in Africa and was composed in the form of a Dialogue It contains a few short but very masterly sketches of all the Speakers who had flourished either in Greece or Rome with any reputation of Eloquence down to his own time and as he generally touches the principal incidents of their lives it will be considered by an attentive reader as a concealed epitome of the Roman history The conference is supposed to have been held with Atticus and their common friend Brutus in Cicero's garden at Rome under the statue of Plato whom he always admired and usually imitated in his dialogues and he seems in this to have copied even his double titles calling it Brutus or the History of famous Orators It was intended as a supplement or fourth book to three former ones on the qualifications of an Orator The second which is intitled The Orator was composed a very short time afterwards both of them in the 61st year of his age and at the request of Brutus It contains a plan or critical delineation of what he himself esteemed the most finished Eloquence or style of Speaking He calls it The Fifth Part or Book designed to complete his Brutus and the former three on the same subject It was received with great approbation and in a letter to Lepta who had complimented him upon it he declares that whatever judgment he had in Speaking he had thrown it all into that work and was content to risk his reputation on the merit of it But it is particularly recommended to our curiosity by a more exact account of the rhetorical composition or prosaic harmony of the ancients than is to be met with in any other part of his works As to the present Translation I must leave the merit of it to be decided by the Public and have only to observe that though I have not to my knowledge omitted a single sentence of the original I was obliged in some places to paraphrase my author to render his meaning intelligible to a modern reader My chief aim was to be clear and perspicuous if I have succeeded in that it is all I pretend to I must leave it to abler pens to copy the Eloquence of Cicero Mine is unequal to the task
