Imaging Spectrometry Freek D. van der Meer, S.M. de Jong, 2011-03-29 A significant step forward in the world of earth observation was made with the development of imaging spectrometry. Imaging spectrometers measure reflected solar radiance from the earth in many narrow spectral bands. Such a spectroscopical imaging system is capable of detecting subtle absorption bands in the reflectance spectra and measure the reflectance spectra of various objects with a very high accuracy. As a result, imaging spectrometry enables a better identification of objects at the earth surface and a better quantification of the object properties than can be achieved by traditional earth observation sensors such as Landsat TM and SPOT. The various chapters in the book present the concepts of imaging spectrometry by discussing the underlying physics and the analytical image processing techniques. The second part of the book presents in detail a wide variety of applications of these new techniques ranging from mineral identification, mapping of expansive soils, land degradation, agricultural crops, natural vegetation, and surface water quality. Health Beyond Medicine Scott Paton, 2009 Shortly after my second child was born he began to experience labored breathing that resulted in vomiting episodes. Every time he experienced one of these episodes his blood oxygen levels would decrease and his fingernails and lips would turn a bluish color. He was admitted into the neonatal intensive care unit where he underwent multiple tests. The fees exceeded 16 000 yet yielded no productive information. It was then I decided to adjust his spine to restore balance to his body. After this life changing adjustment his medical problems ceased and he had true complete health. Our medical system is focused on chasing a symptom in an effort to cover it up rather than treat the whole person and restore balance. Your body has the ability to function normally or in balance allowing you to feel your best. When your body is out of balance it's time to see a chiropractor.
